THE NEW YORK THEORISTS. -The Chicago Times expresses its candid opinions of the theorists whose testimony before the congressional committee we published yesterday. It says: It is difficult to imagine that any rational being, even without the least schooling, could be so enormous a dunce as to suppose that labor would prosper if capital were driven out of the country. Any bright boy of baif a dozen summers understands that if he had a jack-knife he could accomplish the enterprise he has in view much easier than he can without the aid of that invention. A jack-knife would be capital; it would increase his capability of production; it would enhance his prosperity and happiness. He wishes he possessed the capital called a jack-knife. To acquire it he saves up pennies, and thus at a tender age begins to practice the vice of accumulation, which the hornyhanded Mr. Goodwin says is improper in a republican country! When he has accumulated money enough he buys a jackknife, and thus becomes a capitalist. Having no jack-knife, the horny-handed Goodwin cannot compete with the youthful capitalist. He therefore goes before Mr. Hewitt's committee, denounces the inventor of jack-knives as an enemy of "humanity," and demands that papa-government shall abolish all inventions and drive all capital and capitalists from the land. The conditions of hold his hone. -Alta California. human happiness and presperity, according to this horny-handed philosopher, are those which are found among the naked South-Sea Islanders, and which, presumptively, existed in a place called Eden before a diabolical enemy of humanity introduced capital by the invention of fig-leaf aprons.

It is hard to speak of these horny-handed

"damphools" in other language than that of contempt. In a country which furnishes at public cost to the poorest inhabitant opportunities for acquiring knowledge, they are sunk in ignorance and superstition lower than South-Sea Islanders, whose prim-Itive condition they so much covet. There are not on the earth any more abject idolators. There are not on this portion of the earth any persons less deserving of sympathy or encouragement or aid. They are wholly unfit to live in a civilized state. It is a pity some way could not be devised to place every one of them, naked and capitalless, upon one of those remote islands in the Pacific whose inhabitants are said to fulfil their destiny without any capital to impede their pursuit of happiness.

A Glance at the County Situation. In this (the Abingdon) district those in favor of readjustment and greenbacks, but opposed to forcible readjustment and repudiation, are largely in the majority. The meeting on Saturday last was of the fairest kind (except that the repudiators worked like beavers a week previous to bring out their forces), and may be considered as a criterion of the voting power. The count amounted to about one bundred and Birty "above suspicion" to a handful who wouldn't be counted at all. The estimate was five to one. At Duff's precinct the forcible resadjusters carried the day. In the Goodson district (in which last year the repudiators broke up the meeting), there is nearly an equal division. Two meetings were held-one at the proper time and place, of which Colonel I. B. Dunn was chairman, numbering one hundred and twenty-six strong, who voted against a convention-the other, about fifty railroaders, it is said, gathered together and elected delegates of their own. The fight in that district will be a hard and close one. At Hall's Bottom the repudiators elected a delegate. At Kinderhook district readjusters opposed to forcible readjustment and repudiation will represent the people.

In the North Fork district the people generally are opposed to a convention, and at White's Mill voted it down. Sixty-three were present, forty-nine of whom voted a rainst a convention and left. The other fourteen remained, and afterwards elected Mr. A. Branson a delegate. That, however, cannot hold, being the action of a minority. The minority of the Wytheville Convention, if this is recognized, will have, after adjournment, the same privilege of mominating and putting a candidate into LOOK AT OUR the field.

The Saltville district, of course, goes for repudiation. An old man in the North Fork district was asked how he was in politics. He replied, "I am in favor of anything that is right, but d-d if I ain't opposed to conventions, repudiation, and the Salt-works. The Glade Spring district elects two dele gates in favor of readjustment, but opposed to forcible readjustment and repudiation. Holston, always with her head up, senfis a delegate who comes square out and expresses his opinion—"Opposed to forcible readjustment at all times and under all circumstances." That was required of him before he was elected.

Hurrah! the general outlook is far better than was expected, especially since the repudiative organs have been claiming nine tenths of the voters. "Foreible" is what is doing the thing. Men who are brave and free don't like to be forced, and won't be, and are too true to their manliness to wish to force others .- Abingdon Standard.

Parson Massey on the Lawyers.

Ifrom the Harrisonburg Commonwealth's report of his speech at Charlottesville.

The Parson then disclaimed any intention of making any attack on professional men, but proved satisfactorily to himself and many of his hearers that, after all, the bushen of taxation was borne by the farburthen of taxation was borne by the far-mer. The lawyer, the doctor, and every-body else, simply added the taxes to their fees, and the tiller of the soil had to pay it all. The farmer is the undersill in the building, and has to bear all the weight; he can't transfer it. The far-mers and laborers constitute 90 per cent. of the entire population of the district. Nine out of ten voters in this district are titlers of the soil. At this potat Judge Harris whispered in the Parson's ear, asking him to excuse him, as he was indisposed and wished to withdraw. The Parson remarks of the Judge. peated the request, and excused the Judge, jocularly saying he would doctor him up before the canvass was over. [Loud laughter.] The Judge whispered in the same ear, and the Parson phonographically said the Judge asks me to pray for him. [Laughter and applause.] Massey said he would, but he was afraid the Judge was beyond repentance. [More laughter.] As the Judge was leaving, he kept up a fusilade of badinage, in which teething, vermifuge, and such aliments and specifies were discovered to the said of the sa cussed freely. Finally the Parson told a story remarkable for its pious moral "in the cool," and which so horrified Tinsley, who was formerly a member of his church. that he commenced to draw up charges to be submitted to the next Association. The good Parson then proceeded to convince the people that they should be represented by one whose interests are identical with their own (the Parson claims to be a farmer, but would like to change). There are but 12 farmers in Congress to 385 lawyers and

An Appeal to the Cow to Abandon Her Scandelous Optimism. Why, cow, how cans't thou he so satisfied?
So well content with all things here below?
So mobituative and so sleeny-eyed.
So meek, so lazy, and so awful slow?
Dest thou not know that everything is mixed—
That nanght is as it should be on this earth,
That prievously the world needs to be fixed,
That nothing we can give has any werth.
That times are hard, that life is fail of care,
Of sin and trouble, and untowardness,
That love is folly, friendship but a snare?—
Prit, cow! this is no time for laziness!
The cud thou chewest is not what it seems!
Get up and moo! Tear 'round and quit thy dreams!
